ENGINEERING SOCIETY

The next meeting of the Engineering Society will be held Friday, Nov. 1st. Tea and cake will be served as usual. Dr. Alexander will address the meeting on "Public Speaking."

All new members should make it a point to hear Dr. Alexander, who is well known in Varsity. The choice of address is a happy one, for too much stress cannot be put on the value of public speaking in the profession of engineering.

Any students who have not yet joined the society should get in touch with the various class representatives or members of the executive and get affiliated with the group.

The annual banquet comes off within a couple of weeks. Tickets will be on sale at it shortly.

Running For Junior Presidency

SIDNEY HUCKVALE

Now that the cry is for bigger and better Proms, it would behoove the voters of the Junior Class to see that that little, but oh, so potent, cross on their ballots is not placed in vain. Huckvale is the logical man for the position, having, so the old tradition says, danced since he was four—or was it five?—years old. Our memory fails us on this little point of electioneering etiquette, but never mind, voting public, we'll go on to his other virtues.

During his Fresh Year he took a prominent part in the Interyear Play, and since this has served on many executive positions. That such talent should have gone unknown hitherto may be attributed to the candidate's modesty on all matters pertaining to himself.

As Captain of Huckvale's Hurricanes in the independent league, Sid created a furore in athletic circles, and has followed this up with exceptional work in interfac rugby.

It has been Sid's misfortune in the past that his efforts have fallen along lines unheralded to the great mass of the student body. This is his first bid to serve his fellow students in a position before the public eye.

Voters of the Junior Class! If social ability is the desired quality in your future President, you will make no mistake in voting for Huckvale.

HERMAN HAYES

Juniors! Hayes for class leader this year!

Since coming to Varsity he has demonstrated his energy and initiative as star quarterback on the Varsity rugby team, now finishing his second year on the senior team, and what demands more of the qualities of a real leader than to be the guide, philosopher and unfailing friend of a rugby team?

As President of the South Calgary High School Literary Society he proved his executive ability, and gained a valuable knowledge of the management of student affairs.

Hayes is a man of quiet determination, of unfailing good humour, and sound business ability. His work for the senior rugby team has demonstrated his qualities of leadership in unmistakable fashion. A power for clear and quick decision, so needful in one who will be called on to tackle the problems of the class management as they present themselves, has been shown by his record, both scholastic and athletic. The foremost qualification asked of a candidate for the Presidency of the Class should be that he has proven his ability in all matters pertaining to leadership. Hayes, whose record is known to all students, is certainly the logical man for the position.

Successful Union Meeting Passes Budget for 1929-30

Dr. Wallace Opens Meeting With Interesting Address on Student Government—Budget Passes with Complete Absence of Fireworks—Union Fees Still Ten Dollars

At a special meeting of the Students' Union held in Convocation Hall last Friday morning, the Union Budget for 1929-30 was passed, the meeting, though well attended, was inclined to be quieter than the usual crowded meeting, little discussion taking place.

Dr. R. C. Wallace, President of the University, delivered a short but interesting address in introduction to the business portion of the meeting. The importance of an active interest in the business affairs of the Union was stressed by Dr. Wallace. As in the case of democracy, student government success is proportional to the amount of individual enthusiasm displayed.

In discussing government by a Students' Council, the president urged the members of the Union to remember that their representatives welcome constructive criticism, and to remember also the regulating influence which may be exercised by the student body. The latter has the power to initiate consideration of governmental policies. A second power, to be exercised with caution, is that of veto. The danger which will always threaten the influence of the mass of the students is that of weakening due to lack of general interest.

In closing, Dr. Wallace congratulated the Union on the sagacity displayed in its choice of officers, and expressed the hope that he might have the opportunity to meet personally many of the students present at the meeting.

The business of the meeting, the passing or rejecting of the budget, was then initiated. F. Barclay moved the adoption of the budget, which motion was seconded by Miss K. Campbell. The motion was carried without further discussion.

Don Cameron, president of the Council, then urged co-operation with the Union's officers. Explanation was made of the apparent three-dollar increase in the Students' Union fee. This extra amount is in payment for the current Year Book, and will be refunded, if desired, on the signature of a cancellation slip at general office.

ADDRESS TO STUDENTS

Rev. J. W. Netram, of India, will address students on the subject "Revolution in the Hindu and Mohammedan World," at a meeting to be held on Friday at 4:30 in Arts 135. This feature is sponsored by the S.C.M.

MISS ROSEBOROUGH WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Committee Announces Miss Margaret Roseborough Winner of I.O.D.E. Award

Miss Margaret Roseborough, Arts '30, has been awarded the post-graduate scholarship for 1930, it was announced on Saturday by the committee of selection of the I.O.D.E.

Well-known and admired in University circles, Miss Roseborough is a daughter of Private Roseborough of the Forty-ninth Battalion, who died of wounds in July, 1916, at the Edmonton military hospital. She was the winner of the I.O.D.E. bursary in 1925, and has had a brilliant record while in attendance at this University. "Peggy," as she is perhaps better known, has also shown no limited capacity for handling student affairs. Her work in various plays will long be remembered, particularly her part in last year's Senior and Year Plays.

The bachelor of arts courts in English is the one which Miss Roseborough has chosen for her studies while at Oxford, the University she will attend next year. This course is in keeping with her interest and ability in literary work. We wish "Peggy" every possible joy in her year abroad, and extend to her our sincere congratulations on her success in winning the scholarship.

Those forming the committee of selection were: Dr. R. C. Wallace, Mr. A. E. Ottewill, Mrs. R. C. Marshall, Mrs. F. J. Butler (Calgary), and Mrs. J. C. Neell (Calgary).

Dr. Wallace Addresses Local Women's Council

Hospital and Analytical Services Described by University President—Much Work for Value Performed in Clinics and Laboratories

"The time may come when a consciousness will arise that we have no right to be sick, then public health will have become a religion," Dr. R. C. Wallace, President of the University, told the Local Council of Women on Thursday afternoon. "Until then we must work to achieve the education of the people to that end."

In a characteristic address, Dr. Wallace talked to the members of the council and several visitors on the work of the University in its relation to public health at a meeting in the Y.W.C.A.

Before everything else, Dr. Wallace stated, the University stands for the advancement of knowledge and pushing back of the boundaries of science in order that the general health of the community at large may be improved. He felt it was a courageous step taken by the University of Alberta when it founded its medical school which has turned out so successfully, and has built around itself University hospital and outdoor clinics which serve the dual purpose of providing fields of observation and study for students of medicine, and medical care, advice and hospitalization for the people of the province.

Pointing out that hospitalization and the care of the sick is not a function of the University, Dr. Wallace explained the recently formed administration of the University hospital whose board of governors is formed of three members of the University and three of the provincial government. The province takes care of the expense in connection with treatment of patients and the University co-operates by giving free medical services, at the same time securing for its students field for study.

The work of the provincial laboratories of the University described by Dr. Wallace proved a revelation to many of his listeners when he explained that yearly the services rendered in analytical work for doctors and hospitals of the province in the treatment of their patients amounted to $150,000 according to set charges, all free of cost; while the whole department with its four highly trained scientific workers and large staff of assistants is administered at a cost of approximately $35,000 a year. Dr. Wallace felt it was an encouraging sign of progress that so many medical men in the province take advantage of this service to elucidate intricacies of disease and prevent contagion.

In reference to the school of nursing in connection with the University, Dr. Wallace pointed out that entrance required a grade eleven standing and did not feel this standard which is required to pursue other professions was any too high. The University confers the R.N. degree on successful candidates at the end of a three-year term, and the B.Sc. in nursing may be secured after a five-year course of training, the last year of which may be devoted to special courses in public health or other branches of nursing.

Mrs. W. A. Flack moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Wallace, which was presented by the president, Mrs. E. L. Hill.

JOTTINGS

Col. and Mrs. F. A. Stewart Dunn and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Mathews were among the guests of the Pharmacy Club at an informal dinner and dance held last Thursday night.

This year's Sophomore Reception to the Freshmen has been set for November 8. A very successful dance has been promised.

The first vesper organ recital of the season was held in Convocation Hall last Sunday, Mr. Herbert Wild, A.R.C.O., being guest organist. In addition to the organ solos, several fine baritone solos were sung by Mr. E. F. McGarvey. The recital was well attended, despite inclement weather.

Miss Ruth Harvey, of Toronto, was the guest of Miss F. Dodd at Pembina Hall last Sunday. The visitor, a Girl Guide "Red Corder," is in charge of cadet work at McGill University, and gave an interesting talk on Cadet and Girl Guide work to the girls of Pembina.

CERCLE FRANCAIS

At the French Club meeting, held in 212 Arts last Wednesday, the Misses Bell, Ferguson, Hawley, Pharis and Johnstone, introduced separately by Miss B. E. Linke, recited in charming style various entertaining skits. They were followed by Mr. Gibbs, who spoke on "Canada, Pays Du Liaison" with his usual eloquence.

MR. H. E. MORRIS GIVES CHEM CLUB ADDRESS

The regular meeting of the Chemical Society was held last Wednesday, Oct. 29, with Mr. H. Morris as speaker. Mr. Morris' subject embraced the production of cellulose and the uses of this product economically.

The possibilities of the future production of synthetic rubber, "hot-dog" covers (same thing?), gas-containers for dirigibles, coal, sanitarium windows, and the like, were discussed. Some of the important processes involved were treated in detail.

The Disciplinary Committee

This statement has been prepared by The Disciplinary Committee for the information of all Gateway readers who are interested.

After the Union abolished The Students' Court last session, The Students' Council turned its attention to the composition of the body which was to take the place of the Court. As a result, The Disciplinary Committee Act was passed last spring, and the new Committee started functioning shortly after the commencement of this session.

The Disciplinary Committee is composed of a Chairman and a Secretary appointed by The Students' Council, and three members elected by The Students' Union. Its jurisdiction, like that of the old Court, extends over all male members of the Union, on or off the campus. This wide jurisdiction is subject, however, to one important qualification which is defined in the amendments to the Act which were recently passed by the Council. To the Men's House Committee is left, with one exception, the jurisdiction over students resident in Athabasca or Assiniboia during the time that such men are in any of the three official University residences. The exception is—"The conduct of male resident students at dances, banquets, luncheons, athletic events and other functions held in the residences but not under the direct management of the Men's House Committee, shall come within the jurisdiction of The Disciplinary Committee."

The Disciplinary Committee is not a court. It has no fixed procedure for dealing with offenders, but may adopt any procedure which a case seems to demand. Its meetings are intended to be thoroughly informal and, in the cases with which the Committee has already dealt this fall, this informal atmosphere was found to be successful. Records of all cases are kept by the Committee for the benefit of the Committee only.

On the other hand, The Disciplinary Committee is, most decidedly, not a police or detective force. For instance—the Committee will deal with offenders for breaches of discipline at dances, banquets, and similar functions; but the actual maintenance of order at such functions will be entirely up to the Dance or Banquet Executive. These executives will be held strictly responsible to The Disciplinary Committee for the proper management of this phase of the function and they will be liable to penalties for neglect of this duty.

The Committee, like the old Court, has wide powers of punishment subject, of course, to an appeal being taken to the Senate Committee on Student Affairs. Under The Disciplinary Committee Act:

"The Disciplinary Committee may, at its discretion, impose fines up to $15.00, bar offenders from attendance at all or any University dances or other student functions, impose suspension from participation in all or any student activities, and it may make recommendations to the Committee on Student Affairs for expulsion from the University. The Disciplinary Committee may, at its discretion, impose other penalties deemed suitable and in accordance with the traditions of The Students' Union provided that such penalties do not exceed in severity those laid down in the first sentence of this subsection."

The general policy of the Committee towards the subject of discipline may be stated as follows: when it comes to the attention of the Committee, through a complaint or otherwise, that any man has been exercising his right to personal liberty in such a way that he has interfered with the rights of other individuals or with the right of the University to a good reputation, then The Disciplinary Committee will intervene. The Committee has no intention of indulging in cheap methods of disciplinary action. It will strive to deal in a reasonable, fair, and friendly manner with all who come before it. It is confident that the spirit of its administration will be reciprocated by the students.

Per A. D. Harding, Secretary.

SENIORS PLAY ESKS SAT. AFTERNOON

Final Game in Provincial League—Varsity Out to Win—At Renfrew Park

The Senior rugby team, fresh from its victory in Manitoba last Saturday, is billed to meet the Edmonton Eskimos in the final game of the Alberta union here on Saturday. As the Calgary Tigers have already clinched the championship, there will be nothing at stake for either team, but that does not mean that the game will not provide plenty of thrills. Varsity, after getting away to a poor start, has of late been showing some of the form that won for her the intercollegiate title last year. With a win on Saturday, and a win the following Saturday against Manitoba, the average of the Green and Gold squad for the season will be immensely improved.

The Eskimos have had a particularly hard season. Crushed repeatedly by the Tigers and the Varsity boys, last year's provincial champions are away down in the cellar, as far as league standing goes, but a win for them on Saturday would do much to cheer their dampened spirits. Taking it all in all, it should be worth seventy-five cents of anybody's money to go down to the park on Saturday.

THE FORUM

THERE IS NO PROGRESS

The University Debating Society held its second debate of the year last Thursday evening in the Men's Common Room.

The resolution, "That there is such a thing as progress in human affairs," was introduced for the Government by Mr. Pete Tingle, who pointed out that Christianity, Prohibition and Democracy has shown the whole world that there is progress in human affairs.

Mr. Herb Surplis, Leader of the Opposition, stated there is not such a thing as progress in human affairs. Men and women of today are made of the same material as the ancients. "Brains" of today are the same as those in earlier days.

Followed a more or less pertinent discussion at both sides of the House, and after rebuttal by the Leader of the Government, a vote was taken, and the discussion given to the Opposition, so that the cause of progress in human affairs was defeated.

Pete Tingle was elected as speaker for the next meeting, and the subject chosen was: "Resolved, that the U. of A. co-ed is playing a losing game to the overtown stenographer."

TENNIS TOURNAMENT NEARS FINAL ROUND

Several Surprises Sprung Over Week—Morton Reaches Semi-Finals in Men's Singles

With the weather still perfect and enthusiasm still keen, the University Tennis Tournament is progressing very satisfactorily.

Hugh Morton has reached the semi-finals in the men's singles. There are several other brackets to be run off before the competition in the finals will be decided. Players in the eights are Skeith, Watts, Manning, Pinkney, Wilson and Haltz.

Kay Nash defeated Dorothy Brown, 6-2, 6-2, and then lost to Helen Mahaffy by the score of 1-6, 6-1, 6-0. Helen Mahaffy will meet Vada McMahon in the finals.

Dorothy Brown and Ted Manning, Kay Nash and Hugh Morton, and J. T. Cairns and H. Mahaffy are still left to fight it out.

Watts and Pinkney, and McCallum and Skeith, are now in the eights.

WHY FORMAL DANCES?

At various times during the past two years there have appeared in this column and in the adjoining correspondence column of this paper complaints against booking-up before dances, against the wearing of evening dress at dances, and against the various other essentials of the major functions. With the appearance of Sunshine's letter in our last issue we see the beginning of what will probably be a long series of similar complaints. More significant, if less noted, is the great amount of subdued and general grumbling which usually precedes and invariably follows the formal dances. It is particularly significant that such grumbling is frequently accompanied by eulogies of the house dances and the pleasant hours spent at them.

We have been informed in these columns that the major dances in the good old days partook very closely of the fashion of the present-day house-dances, that in those happy days there was no booking-up, no formal dress, no expensive tickets, and no such crowds as to demand for safety's sake a breaking of step when passing over the floor on the southern side of the hall. We have further been informed by the same medium that in those days the fixed dances, though not so packed, were enjoyed to an extent that is quite unknown at the present day. Is it possible that the pristine simplicity of the major functions has been gradually thrust aside by the slow accumulation upon accumulation of the minutiae of wealth and style, so that these once natural and almost spontaneous gatherings have become so many fashion parades and luxury exhibits, in which pleasure is sacrificed to appearance, and desire to custom? Is it possible that, save alone to a few Freshmen, who are tenaciously slow in imbibing a social atmosphere, the major functions are only weary duties of society, to be attended perfunctorily because solely of the necessity "of keeping up with the Joneses"?

However it may be, there seems no doubt that to the majority of lovers of the dance—particularly to the male—the major functions have lost much of their attraction, and that among them the less formal and less rigid house dance has acquired the popularity once the property of the "grand hops." If such be the tendency a near change is indicated; either the large dances must be abolished altogether, or they must be modified so that a complete restoration to their original form, as far as it was similar to the present-day house dances, be effected.

Then shall the men once more turn out a large quantity of original and high-grade whoopee without having the feeling and giving the impression that the deed is done for God, for king, for country, and for the sweet thing to whom a dance is a dance whether or not it be arranged by "pre-established harmony," and whether or not her escort's shirt be a shirt or a rigid plank.

AN APOLOGY

Peccavi. To the Students' Council, and particularly to the members thereof who initiated the motion by which in the meeting of October 15th all connections of the Union with Mr. Stan Barker were broken off, the Editor makes apology for certain statements in an editorial entitled "Anomaly Upon Anomaly" appearing in The Gateway of October 24th.

Accurate information obtained by the Editor since the writing of this editorial reveals that the time chosen was neither "extremely awkward" nor "exquisitely inopportune"—that, indeed, rather than being chosen by, it was forced upon the Council. For this statement, then, and for this statement with the hint at the possible legal consequences, alone of all that the editorial contained, the Editor makes sincere apology.

KINGSTON vs. EDMONTON

We read with interest in the Edmonton Journal for October 24 that Queen's University, situated at Kingston, Ontario, is to receive six hundred thousand dollars' worth of new buildings. This is in itself an interesting item, but what particularly caught our attention was the following: "The city of Kingston may contribute by a vote of the people some $100,000. Queen's University is one of the best 'industries' the city possesses, and it must not be allowed to be limited in its operations, Kingston citizens feel." The generosity of Kingston towards its University in the past makes the result of the vote almost a foregone conclusion.

The sentiments of the city of Edmonton towards the University of Alberta in general and the student body in particular offer a tragic and startling contrast to this ideal state of affairs. This unfortunate institution seems to be regarded almost as a blot on the landscape of the city, and its students as a gang of low-class toughs. Citizens who are hasty in their condemnation of the University will do well to remember that here is what amounts, practically, to a small city, and that, as such, it is made up of all types of persons. Nobody takes this into account, however, and if a few students happen to create a minor disturbance in town, letters immediately appear in the papers demanding the suppression of what has been at various times described as "infantile behaviour" and "rowdyism"; protests are launched in the City Council and altogether a great fuss ensues. We

Stenog.: "Put a hat on it and keep it from catching cold."

Lover (passionately): "Don't you feel the call of the irresistible?"

Loved: "Sure. Let's eat."

Embrace your opportunities—especially if they are good-looking.

She: "Do you love babies?"

He: "Sure, if they are about eighteen or twenty years old."

Freshette: "My hair needs cutting awfully, doesn't it?"

Second Freshette: "Oh, I don't think so—it's cut that way now."

Who Is It—?

The woodpecker wept in dismay,
As the shades of evening came,
For he had been pecking all day
On a head he will not name.

The Prof.: "Don't be so literal, Mr. Field; read between the lines."

Field: "I can't sir; it's partly erased."

Chem. Prof.: "Name three things containing starch?"

Grant: "Two cuffs and a collar."

She laid the still white form beside those that had gone before. No groan, no sigh burst from her. Suddenly she let forth a cry that pierced the still morning air, making it vibrate into a thousand echoes. It seemed as if it came from her very soul. Twice the cry was repeated, and then all was quiet again. She would lay another egg tomorrow.

Ben: "Grace told me last night to kiss her on either cheek."

Bob: "What did you do?"

Ben: "Oh, I paused a while between them."

Prof.: "What water power exercises the greatest influence over mankind?"

Stude: "Women's tears."

She tried to get a pail of milk, but the darned thing turned to butt her.

Chivalry
Is the relic
Of pre-confederation days
Which nowadays prompts a man
To take the arm of a girl
Who has beaten him five sets of tennis
And two rounds of golf
And escort her across
A perfectly clear street.

Minister: "I called to find out if you would join us in the new missionary movement?"

Mrs. Newlywed: "I'd like to try it. Is it anything like the toddle?"

He: "Will you kiss me?"

She: "No; I have scruples!"

He: "Oh, that's all right; I've had them twice."

Suitor (to her father): "I'm—I'm—ah—I say, I'm in love with your daughter. I—ah—ah—"

Father: "Do something big and clean, my boy, then come around and talk to me."

And the poor dumb-bell went off and washed an elephant.

wonder how the citizens of Edmonton would like to be represented as a bad lot because a few of them appear in the police court every morning.

Furthermore, the fact that here, as at Kingston, the University is one of the city's best industries, is one that cannot be contradicted. The Chamber of Commerce receives the hearty commendation of the citizens when it manages to induce some infant industry, yielding thirty or forty thousand dollars a year, to settle in this city, but for the University, which yields a meagre million dollars or so, they reserve their heartiest abuse.

Such a state of affairs is lamentable; but it is nevertheless true, and has been true ever since the University was founded here in 1908. Surely something can be done about it. We are not even suggesting such a thing as a hundred thousand dollar donation, to a building fund; we are merely asking for a square deal.

TO BE SOPHISTICATED—OR NOT TO BE

With the entrance of Percival Hodnut into the lists in defence of the over-town stenographer, as represented by his sister, the tournament being waged over the point of sophistication which a co-ed is justified in adopting, takes a new turn, and assumes a new proportion. By all appearances the question is to be thoroughly, possibly heatedly, thrashed out before being consigned, as many other once prominent controversies in The Gateway have been, to the ranks of oblivion. We take this as a good sign of living spirit and candor in both sexes of our society. A mutual understanding is a necessary feature of that co-operation between the sexes without which society becomes possibly primeval, perhaps medieval, certainly Victorian, and definitely not of the healthy and happy twentieth century. If our men have any general fault to find with our women, be it known. If, alternately, our women see a widespread defect among our men, let them shout it from the house-tops, let them pen it in the columns of the paper which exists for the free and unrestricted expression of their opinions, on church, state, heaven, hell, liquor, education, dress, culture, woman, and man.

AMERICANIZATION OF CANADA

Something of the fear that finds expression in the following letter has perhaps at times worried all of us who have not lost our patriotism in philanthropy and our nationality in cosmopolitanism. We feel that the question is eminently fit for discussion in a university paper.—(Editor.)

Editor, The Gateway.
Dear Sir,—There is a feeling among many Canadians that our country is being influenced to a greater extent than is desirable by our sister democracy to the south, this influence being particularly due to the American literature which forms so large a part of the reading matter of the average Canadian, and to the motion picture productions which are almost all of American manufacture. It is not the purpose of the writer to criticize the productions in question, which were designed primarily for the people of the United States, but rather to indicate a couple of incidents to show why it may be well for us to reconsider the sources of our ideas.

Of course there are those who consider our friend, the editor of "MacLean's," a bit too nationalistic in his "National Magazine," but we may quite well believe him when he tells us that on asking a number of school-boys on the streets of Toronto this question, "Who was the first to fly over the Atlantic?" the reply was almost invariably, "Lindbergh." The writer has tried it out on the streets of Edmonton with the same results. Comparatively few, even adults, remember that Alcock and Brown, two Britishers, had flown the Atlantic long before Lindbergh. At the moment we are not discussing the point as to whether it is well to glorify such exploits to such a great extent as is the practice in the United States. We are only pointing to an example which illustrates how the younger generation grows up with the idea that everything great has been done by Americans, — because the achievements of the latter are being glorified, while those of our own race have not been similarly emphasized.

A recent editorial in The Gateway discusses the great advantage to mankind as a result of the invention of the incandescent electric light by Thomas A. Edison. We have been told so often that Edison invented the electric bulb that we have come to believe it. That is one of the characteristics of the human mind—constant repetition wins its unquestioning acceptance. That is how public opinion is moulded. It is a well known principle of advertising. And goodness knows,—maybe it's the instinctive reasoning of the persistent young lover who proposes on every possible occasion and won't accept defeat! But if the British Institute of Electrical Engineers agree that Sir Joseph Swan's incandescent lamp was exhibited at Newcastle on December 18th, 1878, and celebrated the jubilee of that event last year, there is very evidently some ground for believing that the credit for the invention should go to Sir Joseph Swan, as Thomas A. Edison's lamp did not appear until October 21st, 1879—nearly a year later.

We are not detracting from the deeds of such men as Lindbergh and Edison—they are truly great. We are, however, pointing out that the young people of our own country are growing up with a disproportionate knowledge of the greatness of the republic to the south—due to a disproportionate amount of reading material, motion picture productions, and other influences, which have their origin in that country. As a corollary it follows that they are unaware of much that they should know about the rest of the world. We close with the question, "Is this condition desirable?" Perhaps some of our worthy knights of the quill will care to discuss the question further.

Yours truly,
A. W. BOULTER.

AGAIN, CO-ED vs. "STENO"

Editor, The Gateway.

Dear Sir,—You may or may not remember a "Plea for Youth" which I addressed to you some weeks ago. It was not at all within my expectations at that time that I should again find excuse for asking consideration of my humble opinions. I trust such consideration will be as kindly granted as in the first case.

I am concerned with the present bitter controversy regarding the co-ed and the "overtown stenographer," in fact, I feel quite put out about the whole business. "Wump-Mug's" communication of your last issue was, frankly, disgusting.

My sister happens to be one of the stenographers referred to, but this is not wholly my reason for wrath. My Uncle Joshua has often remarked on my unbiased attitude in controversial matters. This attitude I shall endeavor to maintain throughout the argument that follows.

"Wump-Mug" is not at all fair to the "overtown stenos" or to the co-eds she is supposed to represent. In spite of her attitude, which she claims is that of other university women, I am aware that there are a few (not so very few) nice co-eds. It is hardly necessary to state that this letter is also prompted by friendships with a few (not so very few) nice overtown stenographers, in addition to those with co-eds. Please don't think that by claiming numerous lady friends I am endeavoring to show myself what "Wump-Mug" is pleased to team "a college boy, that gift of God to the world."

CORRESPONDENCE

It is a truly appalling statement your correspondent makes when she says: "In most cases the overtown stenographer has not undergone daily association with the male of the species, and for that reason, to her, they are surrounded with rather a mystical air." If you are inclined to believe this, the O. S. herself will soon reveal to you complete lack of illusion concerning said male, with whom, as a matter of fact, she has more frequent and often more intimate association than has the co-ed. Few "stenos" are as worshipful of the college boy as we are told by "Wump-Mug." No, lady, I can't agree with you on these points.

Surely it is not characteristic of "our girls" to say, "Why should we go out of our way to be nice to men students if we don't feel so inclined?" The answer to the question, requested by "Wump-Mug," certainly involves reference to the unwritten laws of common decency. Men students are in general prepared to be polite. May we not have a corresponding consideration from those who, whether they are "interested" or not, must (figuratively, of course) rub shoulders with us?

Regarding "meal tickets." It is just as foolish to state that all "stenos" look only for a means of support as to say that all co-eds look only for men to pay their Tuck bills. I may add here that our friend shows an entirely unwarranted optimism in the matter of obtaining that position with short hours, good money, and lack of the humdrum. Few of her co-ed acquaintances find such positions easy to obtain, and needs must learn stenography and mix, willy-nilly, with the abhorred "overtown stenographers."

May I hope some of "Wump-Mug's" disillusionment is now to be found reflected in the face of "Wump-Mug"?

Yours amicably,
PERCIVAL HODNUT.

CAUTION MONEY SOLUTION

Varsity,
October 24, 1929.

Editor, The Gateway.

Dear Sir,—In the last issue of The Gateway an objection was voiced by one person against the present system of refunding the caution money at the conclusion of the University session. But will you, Mr. Editor, allow me some more space to criticize this system from another angle?

As before said, the calendar states that the sum of $5.00 be deposited by every student as caution money. An additional sum, in case of any damage, is to be paid in before such student is allowed to write the examinations.

My mind is always questioning me, "Why all this trouble; the trouble of collecting, the trouble of handling, and the trouble again of refunding the money? Is it not possible for us students to go through without giving this inconvenience to the authorities and ourselves?" And I answer, "Yes, it is—if they only knew how."

I believe, knowing nothing about statistics, that the number of students who do not get the refund is about one per cent. I may be wrong in this respect, though. Well, then, how about the 99 per cent.? Yes, they simply have to subject themselves to this unnecessary requirement every year for at least four years without cause. At this point you become rather interested—thinking of solutions.

I contend that the above clause in the calendar is sufficient to warrant the payment of damages. But, mind you, not the first part of the clause, but the second. Before the fee is paid—I mean the tuition fee and all—nothing can be collected from anyone should he leave the institution after causing any damages. But let us say the student paid all his fees less caution money. He causes damage some time in January and leaves the institution. Evidently the University loses nothing by it, as it makes up for it from his general fee which entitled him to the balance of the year's tuition. Should he leave before the finals the institution loses nothing either; for he even at this point has not gotten his money's worth. It is worth more than $5.00 to give him the examinations and results. If the damage is in excess of $5.00, the institution anyhow would have to collect the additional sum. If he should cause damage on the day after the examinations his results can be withheld until such be paid, thereby forcing him to pay. I humbly think there would be less trouble collecting all the damages from one per cent. than collecting the caution money from everyone. And yet the institution would lose not a cent by abolishing completely this nuisance—(I beg to apologize should this hurt anyone's feelings).

I hope I have been successful in making clear that any damages done would still be paid by the person responsible for such and not borne by the institution, irrespective of caution money. The students are in the hands of the authorities. They can be made to conform to the rules by simply refusing them examinations or withholding their results. What else is wanted?

Hence it would be easier to deal with, roughly guessing, one per cent. of the students through necessity than ninety-nine per cent. through just thinking, "Well, they may do that damage." This would eliminate the turnover of, say, fifteen hundred dollars. In addition, the institution may lay off one clerk whose services thereby would be eliminated—again more than making up for very, very minor cases.

I would then suggest, if you will permit me to do so, that the calendar be amended to read as follows: Any student shall be suspended from classes or examinations, or his results be withheld, unless such student pays promptly the estimated damages done in the institution. Hence all caution money in such a way would be done away with, and in case of big damages the double collection would be reduced only to one.

I thank you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.—I remain,

Yours truly,
J. M. LAZARENKO.

ANNIVERSARY—RAH! RAH!

Editor, The Gateway.

Dear Sir,—With your permission I wish to bring to the attention of Gateway readers a criticism that has been made by many students almost every day since the end of last session. It concerns the sign that is hung over the main entrance to Convocation Hall and bears the inscription, "University of Alberta, 1908, 21st Anniversary, 1929, Welcome."

I do not know what man or what organization was responsible for the placing of this sign; and I am sure that the criticisms being made so generally are not expressed with the intention of ridiculing such man or organization.

Almost everyone seems to abhor the sight of the placard. Some say that it should be removed because the tumult of wild celebration is long past; just as Christmas decorations should be removed within a reasonable time after Christmas. Others say that it smacks too much of village pride; that it bears too close a resemblance to the signs one sees plastered on roadside entrances to our thriving farming centres: "Podunkville, 1908, 21st Anniversary, 1929, Watch our city grow!" "Antioch, Alberta, the cabbage growing centre of the world. Welcome!" They also suggest that it would be better to have it carried as a banner before a parade, along with all the other banners, "Which will it be, the Bottle or the Boy?" "Vote for Scroggins, and Education for the Youth of Our Land!"

The greater number of objections are launched against its rather inartistic colorings and composition. Even if the sentiment of it, they say, were laudable, would it not have been wiser to put a little more effort and taste into its making? "When," they ask, "is that grocery sign to be taken down?" And they follow up this question with the suggestion that a few Coca-Cola placards be draped on either side of it, some cigarette ads above, and a choice of the more popular baking-powder, boiled ham and corn-flakes streamers beneath it. This, they claim, would place the original sign in its proper setting.

These criticisms, sir, are not necessarily my own. They are some that I have heard in the halls. Some of them may be a little too harsh and far-fetched, yet they are being made so often and so bitterly that this means of bringing them to the attention of the people responsible for the alleged atrocity may be of some practical service.

Yours truly,
—E. M. J.

CRITICISM OF EDITORIAL

We regret that this letter was received just too late for publication in our last issue, where it would have been far more timely. We regret it in particular because the editorial under fire, a re-reading of which as it stands we consider will give more than sufficient justification of the position we held, may not now be available to those interested in the question.—(Editor.)

University,
Oct. 22, 1929.

Editor, The Gateway.

Dear Sir,—May I advance an opinion differing from yours as expressed in your editorial entitled "Behind Open Doors" in the issue of Oct. 17th?

The student body was informed that "any member of the Union may attend Council meetings as a spectator," first in Arts, Med. buildings and in Pembina and Athabasca on notices of a special meeting of the Council held Thursday, Oct. 10th; second, the legend was up on two large placards on the bulletin boards before your article appeared, to say nothing of appearing in the "Minutes of the Council Meeting" appearing in the previous issue of The Gateway. If a student is sufficiently interested in Council affairs to desire admittance to meetings he will surely read the minutes of such meetings.

As some may gather from your editorial, "Behind Open Doors" is not a new idea. If you will refer to the present constitution you will find that the Council meetings were declared open to members of the Union with the adoption of the Constitution.

Yours truly,
A. D. HARDING.

SENIOR vs. JUNIOR ATHLETICS

We like a fearless statement; to the correspondent who sends us the following letter we offer our congratulations for his able expression of an opinion which, we believe, has long been held by some among us but never before put forth.—(Editor.)

University of Alberta,
October 25, 1929.

Editor, The Gateway.

Dear Sir,—May I be allowed a few remarks on a subject discussed by you in your editorial column of last week, namely, the question of the relative position of senior and interfac. athletics?

What you term "the opinion of the minority" was admirably expressed by your "three points" in favor of junior sports. Allow me to accept your more able wording of my own opinions to avoid repetition. However, the implication in your editorial that a very few individuals who are already favored above their fellows with health, strength and athletic ability, receive the lion's share of any benefits that may accrue from organized athletics by the will of the majority, is, in my opinion, not justified. To say that if a certain condition exists in a democratic form of government means that it exists by the will of the majority, is merely stating the ideal of democracy, and means nothing! The administration of athletic affairs in this University is certainly unfair, but just what is the opinion of the majority in this matter?

Let me answer for myself and advance the hope that each student will, in some way, also express himself.

At the risk of seeming irrelevant let me make a blunt statement. If it were not compulsory I would not be a member of the Students' Union. Each year I feel greater regret at parting with the dollars extorted by the Union because each year the hope that I shall receive at least part value in return diminishes, and that is not meant in an entirely material sense, either. I do not feel particularly exalted if, in any one year, there happens to be a better group of athletes attending Alberta than Saskatchewan; in fact, I am not even curious about such coincidences—certainly not curious enough to warrant spending considerable money to decide the question. Somehow I cannot generate a frenzy of enthusiasm through the medium of "Pep" rallies, "Rah, Rah's" and the like! (Perhaps my nature is too primitive, and would respond more readily to "tom-toms" and the incantations of "medicine-men.")

As to the material benefit I would expect from my money (earned, by the way, with perhaps as much difficulty as that of some of the senior athletes). I have the privilege of taking part in interfac. sport so long as the league I play in asks for no more than nominal support from the Union—in short, the same privilege I would have if sports were not organized under the Union or any other body. Let me mention two personal experiences. Last year I would have liked to take part in just one branch of athletics—boxing. We were asked for two dollars as membership to the Boxing Club, and though the officials of the club were at least honest, in that they were prepared to give us

There is not such a thing as progress in human affairs. Change, alteration, variation, metastasis, transfiguration, all these things we have, but progress never. Eadem—sed aliter. True that the same man may not cross the same river twice; but the reason is not that the man has progressed, not that the river has progressed; it is that the man on his return is not the same, that the river is different. The sun that rose this morning will never be seen again; and yet there has been no progress. Eadem—sed aliter. The tears you wept at dawn, fair one, have lost their meaning in the dust; yet, though a smile beams transient on your cheeks, there has been no progress.

Some strive for gold, some strive for glory—the purposes of life are infinite. Dying, each shall say the world is better for his life, each shall know the labour of his hands has added to the forward movement of the world. And yet there will have been no progress. The last shall be first, and the first shall be last; for the roads all follow stretch apart, are conglomerate contrariwise. Is this progress to the high-checked redskin that cities deck his once open plains? Is this progress to the weather-scored sailor that great flying machines thunder far above his once uncharted shores? Is this progress to the leisure-loving white that from the nearing West come hordes of industrious Chinese, accepting his privileges, arrogating his powers? Men start from different points, facing different ways they set out with diverse objects, some succeed to attain their desires and stretch out for more, others falling roll over by their own peculiar wayside and know no more—and we speak of progress.

Who but a philosopher can see it all? And what philosopher but Durant could put it thus today—Durant, who says:

"..... and we remake,
And we remake."

PHILOALETHES.

"Only If"

I often wonder—
When I see a star—
If from its lofty height,
It feels our throbbing pulses' beat
Or sees our tragic plight.
—Or if a comet in its flight
E'er pauses near this earth—
When of a sudden bursting into heat
It swerves its course with undue haste
Far from our sorrowing race.
—Or if an angel in the night
On low-spread wing, e'er hovereth near,
To blend a single strain of sweet accord
With this world's hum of harsh discord.
—Z. J. O.

something for the money, the request seemed decidedly unfair, since I would have expected to receive this benefit from fees already paid to the Union. Again, one Sunday last winter about a dozen fellows, including myself, chose sides and went to the rink to play a game of hockey. We found that the $3 per year that we pay towards the rink did not entitle us to use it, and we had to pay extra for that slight privilege—perhaps because the issue of the game would not add any "glory" to the University.

I believe I need write no further to make my opinion clear. Since what I have expressed here may cause some indignation, I have no wish to remain anonymous.

Yours truly,
N. D. McLEAN.

And her ingratitude forever won.
The fem'ine character his sphere,
Its betterment his aim and care.
His thoughts profound, the world did hear—
Authority beyond compare.
Ah, silent now, his work in vain,
Sole bulwark 'gainst untruth and vice,
And those for whom he wrought amain,
Unheeding of his sacrifice.
No more shall guileless maidens rise,
To scan, from blissful slumbers,
The Don's own thoughts and sage advice,
All set in honied numbers.
His work undone, his pupils none the wiser,
Now speaks the oracle no more,
To females lost a friend sincere, adviser,
No better e'er breathed before.
Methinks him little loved by those he taught,
For if they roused his ire,
And wrath oracular upon them brought,

Of fem'ine follies, folly, lack of wit.

Report of the Committee On Constitution Revision

Section I.—General

The Committee on Constitution Revision, appointed by The Students' Council last spring for the purpose of preparing suggested amendments to the Constitution of The Students' Union and reprinting same, has held to date about thirty meetings. Through the courtesy of one of its members, Miss Anna Wilson, the committee was able to forsake the comparatively comfortable halls of the University and to hold all its meetings, excepting a few since the commencement of the fall session, at Miss Wilson's residence. The other members of the Committee are deeply appreciative of Miss Wilson's hospitality, and wish to express to her their very sincere thanks.

Section II.—General Policy

The Committee feels that, as a general policy, the Constitution should not be tampered with except when amendments are really necessary. However, the lapse of time since the Constitution was last overhauled has caused many inaccuracies and inconsistencies to develop in the Constitution and these the Committee has sought to correct. While making such changes and others which seemed necessary, the Committee also made numerous changes in the detail of the Constitution. The latter would not be essential ordinarily, but it was felt that they should be included in a general revision.

Section III.—Records

The Committee encountered considerable difficulty through the failure of some Councils of past years to include in the minutes of their meetings the full text of amendments presented for their consideration. The Committee suggests that this omission be remedied by the present Council.

Section IV.—Committee on Student Affairs

Your Committee also found it difficult to deal with the situation created by the Committee on Student Affairs last session in passing amendments in a different form to that in which they were passed by The Students' Union. Your Committee respectfully submits that the Committee on Student Affairs should either accept, reject, or refer back for reconsideration, amendments sent to it by The Students' Council (formerly by The Students' Union). The Constitution requires that amendments to it be approved both by The Students' Council and by the Committee on Student Affairs before being presented to the President of the University, and your Committee believes that this is intended to mean that the amendments should be approved in identical form.

Section V.—Recommendations

In regard to three matters in particular, the Committee felt that it was not advisable to attempt to do anything during the summer months.

(1) The Committee is in favour of the creation of a new office in The Students' Union—that of a permanent Secretary-Treasurer. This official, it has been suggested, would take the place of the Secretary and Treasurer of The Students' Union, the Business Manager of The Gateway and the Year Book, the Students' Union Accountant, the Director of The Handbook, and the Schedule Man. The Committee feels that the time is opportune this session to make arrangements for such an official, and recommends that the Council appoint a new Committee to investigate the proposition and recommend plans for its fulfilment.

(2) The question of honorariums for student officials was discussed by the Committee but, in this case also, it felt that a new Committee should inquire into it fully during this session.

(3) The whole matter of decorations came up for discussion in connection with proposed changes in Men's Athletic decorations. The Men's Athletic Association awarded last spring a few decorations not authorized by The Men's Athletic Association Act and, if an entirely new scheme is not instituted, it will be necessary to make provision this season for the above mentioned innovations in Men's Athletic decorations. However, the Committee recommends that the whole matter of decorations be gone into fully by a new committee this fall. The Committee is prepared to recommend to this new body that all decorations under The Students' Union, whether athletic, literary or otherwise, be divided into two classes: (a) a limited number of felt letters of one size only for major athletic teams; (b) felt shields for all other teams and organizations. Except for the new Social Directorate and Point System Acts, all the proposed changes are grouped together in a single Constitution and Statutes Amendment Act.

Submitted by:
MAX H. WERSHOF, Chairman.
ANNA WILSON, Secretary.
REG. C. HAMILTON.
A. W. HOBBS.

AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR THE SOCIAL DIRECTORATE

The President of the University, acting on behalf of the Senate, by and with the advice and consent of the Committee on Student Affairs and The Students' Union, enacts as follows:

1. This Act may be cited as "The Social Directorate Act."

2. The Social Directorate shall consist of the following five members:

(a) A Chairman, to be elected as provided for under The Students' Union Act.
(b) The Vice-President of The Students' Union, ex officio.
(c) Two members to be appointed by The Students' Council, on recommendation of the Chairman, within two weeks of the installation of the Council in the spring.

(d) One member to be appointed by The Students' Council, on recommendation of the Chairman, during the first two weeks in October.

3. The Social Directorate shall be responsible for the entertainment of visiting teams and other guests of The Students' Union. The various clubs and societies under The Students' Union shall co-operate fully with The Directorate in making plans for the reception of the teams and other guests particularly connected with such clubs and societies.

4. The Social Directorate shall be financed principally by appropriation from The Students' Council.

This Act shall come into force at the end of the 1929-30 session, on being passed by The Students' Council and the Committee on Student Affairs and on receiving the approval of the President of the University.

AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR THE REPEAL OF THE POINT SYSTEM ACT

The President of the University, acting on behalf of the Senate, by and with the advice and consent of the Committee on Student Affairs and The Students' Union, enacts as follows:

1. The Act entitled "An Act to Provide for The Point System" is hereby repealed.

2. This Act shall come into force on being passed by The Students' Council and the Committee on Student Affairs and on receiving the approval of the President of the University.

ACT TO PROVIDE FOR THE POINT SYSTEM

Whereas, it is deemed in the interests of efficient government that no student should accept the responsibilities and discharge the duties pertaining to many offices,

Therefore, the President of the University, acting on behalf of the Senate, by and with the advice and consent of the Committee on Student Affairs and The Students' Union, enacts as follows:

Section I

This Act may be cited as "The Point System Act."

Alberta Wins from Manitoba In Intercollegiate Fixture

Superior Kicking by Hess Gives Alberta 15-9 Victory Saturday at Winnipeg—Alberta Scores Twice on Manitoba Fumble

The Alberta rugby team came out of its losing streak by a win against Manitoba last Saturday in Winnipeg. The game was closely contested all the way, and it was not till the last few minutes of play that Alberta cinched the game with a touch. As far as the scoring went, Alberta was fortunate in that she got both of her touches on fumbles by the Manitoba players. Superior kicking by Hess went a long way in giving Alberta her win.

The day was perfect but for a strong wind blowing down field. Alberta's win on Saturday definitely puts Manitoba out of the running for the Hardy cup, which goes to Saskatchewan.

MEDS ELIMINATED FROM RUGBY FINALS

Ag-Scis Win in Close Game to Cinch Play-off Position

In a thrilling gridiron battle, the Ag-Sci team blasted the hopes of the scale-bending Med-Dent aggregation by taking them into camp at 6-2. The pace was fast and furious all the way, no quarter being asked or given. The Meds started out like the proverbial house on fire, when they got a safety touch in the first few minutes of play. In the next frame, however, the Aggies got a kick to the deadline, which seemed to give them the necessary pep, vim and vigour. The following quarter produced a see-saw affair, neither team being able to score, but each putting across a good brand of the "fall" pastime. In the final stanza it looked as though the Meds were going to hang on to their slim lead, and still remain in the league race. When things were looking black for the Ag-Sci supporters, Herron broke away for a beautiful thirty yard run to place the ball on the Meds' five yard line. The next play, an end run, proved a failure, but on the following one Herron found an opening and dashed through to turn the tables and salt the game away.

For the losers, Lopston got in some nice line-plunging, while Oswald was doing the stone-wall act in the line. Herron and Smith for the Engineers gave their supporters plenty of opportunity to cheer, making a smooth combination in the backfield that will be hard for any team to stop.

The Ag-Sci and Arts-Com-Law teams have earned their right to tangle in the play-off, which is scheduled for this week, when plenty of fireworks should result.

Ag-Sci Win from Arts-Com-Law, 17-2
In a one-sided gridiron tussle, Ag-Sci rolled over the Arts-Com-Law huskies by the score of 17-2. In the first ten minutes of play the Ag-Sci assembly piled up an insurmountable lead. Smith sifted through the whole Arts team for a seventy-five yard run ending in a touchdown. A few minutes later Herron, the other Ag-Sci half, scored another touch by a brilliant thirty-five yard run. Both these were converted by Snyder, and this lead was never threatened for a moment by the hard-trying Arts aggregation. Play was ragged throughout, especially on the part of the Arts team, who never seemed to recover from the crushing lead that was piled up in the first inning.

Smith and Herron were the bright lights for the winners, while McCourt and Huckvale shone on the defence for the losers, repulsing attack after attack and getting in some nice work when they got a chance to carry the ball.

The Ag-Sci looked good enough for champions, in this workout, but it is maintained by the Arts supporters that their team hasn't hit its stride yet. It won't be long now till we know who's who in rugby circles.

TWO-BALL FOUR AND DINNER WON BY DR. BROADUS
Dr. Broadus' Team Defeats Team Captained by Dr. Sonet, Faculty Golf Champion

The interfaculty golf tournament was very suitably wound up last Saturday afternoon, when the two teams captained by Dr. Sonet, the new cupholder, and Dr. Broadus, the runner-up, respectively, met in a two-ball foursome match at Mayfair. As it was stated in The Gateway last week, the losing team were to pay for the dinner in which they were all to participate after the match.

Dr. Broadus' team proved to be too good for that of Dr. Sonet, with the result that Dr. Sonet's team had to pay for the dinner.

The dinner was held in the club-

SPORTING SLANTS

The boys brought home the bacon from Manitoba. They may have got the breaks, but they won, and they can do it again when the Manitoba team comes up here. Let's all go out and see them do it.

Taking the game from the boys on their own home grounds seems like a "dog in the manger" trick, but all's fair in love and war. At that, they did Saskatchewan a good turn while they were putting Manitoba out of the running.

Congratulations are certainly due the Saskatchewan team. They are, to use the words of a well known car advertisement.... "worthy successor to a great success." We wish them luck and dry weather when they go to Vancouver.

Hess must have done some wonderful kicking in Winnipeg. A kick to the deadline from your own forty yard line needs more than the wind to help it along.

Pullishy was also in the limelight. If he hit the line as hard as he did here last week the Manitoba boys will know they have been in a game for a few days to come.

Varsity has a right to be proud of the showing which Gladys Fry made against Cleveland in the Grads-Cleveland series. Eighteen points in one game is no mean evening's work for one girl. Our girls' basketball team with Gladys as pivot should go a long way this year again.

Another Varsity athlete was seen in the limelight Saturday night. It is quite an honor to be asked to run against the world's best sprinter. Congratulations, Harold. We hope you'll be able to beat him some day.

These cool nights seem to suggest that it won't be long until hockey and skating will be with us again. Rumor has it that there is some real hockey material in the Freshman class. How about appointing a committee to see that they pass their tests?

Of course, these rumors are current every year, but you never can tell when another Duke Keats or a Gilly Levell will turn up among the young and innocent freshmen. There are some who already have been tried and not found wanting, both in the Edmonton City League and in other leagues of equal calibre.

The interfaculty rugby league is progressing favorably in spite of the fact that equipment is conspicuous by its absence. Some good games should be seen on the grid as the end of the schedule draws near. Why not all turn out and support your respective faculties?

The tennis courts should also be worth visiting once in a while as the tournament draws to a close. Many good matches should be seen there.

The glove and mat men will soon be getting into action. Judging by the Freshmen's enthusiasm for scrapping, they should be able to contribute some good material to the club.

Last, but not least—don't forget that there's a rugby game between Varsity and the Eskimos next Saturday at Renfrew Park.

house of the Mayfair links, and was heartily enjoyed by all the members, that is to say—(the feelings may not have been entirely unmixed on the part of Dr. Sonet's team).

After dinner the cup was presented to Dr. Sonet, also the low-score medals which were won by Dr. Sonet and Dr. Rutherford were presented.

In discussing the arrangements for next year's tournament, it was decided that the games be all played off on one day instead of spreading it over a period of a fortnight as they did this year.

The committee appointed for the ensuing year is as follows: Dr. Owen, Dr. Sonet, A. West, Esq.

VARSITY TAKES GAINERS INTO CAMP, SOCCER

Fast Game Results in Three Goals to Nil for Green and Gold

Varsity played their usual vigorous game on Saturday last when they scored a decided victory over Gainers. The match was played on Gainers' ground on the south side, where they were hoping to make up for their defeat on the campus, but the Varsity boys kept them busy defending their goal. Gaudin opened the score for Varsity, shooting with his usual speed and accuracy. This was followed by an effort on the part of Howells, who neatly put one in under the cross-bar for number two. Gaudin scored the third goal.

Throughout the game the University team had the best of the play, the front rank worked together, and the defence gave ample proof of their ability.

LINES—HEARD AND OVERHEARD

By P.T.

There are lines—and lines. At the moment, I am not concerned with the straight or curved varieties, nor yet the fish-line, although this may be applicable, in a sense. The lines to which I refer are those which are thrown out, invariably, when a group of people are gathered together; the size of the group is immaterial. Some of these lines are so fine and silken that they get by almost unnoticed, but others—are more like cables! The best place to get a line on lines is at a dance. That is where I got most of my material.

The Dance is Good Fishing Ground

The commonest, of course, is that best "slung" while dancing, and is usually accompanied by a gentle squeeze — "Why did I never meet you before? You're the lightest little girl on her feet that I've ever danced with." The correct follow-through for this is some variation of — "You're wonderful—so different from any other girl I ever met!"

The lady, by this time, is ready to throw out a line or two of her own. "You're a rugby player, aren't you?—I thought you must be, you're so big and strong; and I just adore rugby players." Of course, he may not play rugby, in which case a slight rearrangement of words is necessary, but in all probability he's in a kind of daze by now, and his highest ambition is to break some portion of his anatomy in the ancient and honorable game.

The gentleman may come out of the fog long enough to realize that all is not gold that glitters, and that he is being kidded along. In which case, he may do a little on his own hook—"I know you don't mean all that, but I'd rather be kidded by you than anyone else"—which usually does the trick.

The Line That Misleads

If a girl has been out with a man, the tale she relates to her friends loses nothing in the telling. "Girls, he's the most marvellous-looking thing, really, and his dancing is divine! And he says the nicest things! I'm all gone on him." As a matter of fact, the man in question is likely a complete mess, with a face not even a mother could love, his dancing may be a subject for prayer, and he didn't say a word all night. But would she admit it?!

Things may work in the opposite direction, however. He may really be God's gift to girls, and the co-eds' dream. In that case, she daren't rave about him, for fear that all her friends will be trying to cut her out. She's very lukewarm—"He's not bad-looking, but I've seen better; and his dancing isn't so hot, either. I don't like him much—he's kind of goofy, anyway." This is calculated to destroy any dangerous interest.

Here is another line, but it takes a fairly pretty girl to get away with this one. She starts her companion talking, about himself, usually, and lets him ramble on. A flattering interest, with "O-o-o-h, really?!! How wonderful!!!" and "How simply thrilling!!" interjected at the psych-logical moments, is all that's necessary.

Who Says Mother Nature Plays Fair?

A man likes to feel big and strong, which is where a small girl has a mean advantage, as she creates the manly feeling with no effort on her part at all. Men have a mania for saying they'd like to pick her up and carry her away. They think this goes over pretty big, because it is actually a physical possibility. She may then pull any line she likes, and you can see them simply swell with conscious power. It comes in very handy, going home from these same dances, when you're all tired out!

THE CHOICE

A Tragi-Comedy

Joe—23—collar size 18, shoes size 7.

Dick—21—ad for Essery.

Adrienne—19—quite blonde—in the sunshine.

Lorna—24—wears deep red on purpose.

Place—Arts 135.

Time—4:30, any day in October.

Joe—Well now, let's get that play picked out. I've got a date at 5. Here's a snappy little comedy ought to go over big.

Dick—What's it called?

Lorna—Who wrote it?

Joe—"Whose Little Wife are You?" by—oh, ah—George Pade. It seems that this Jane's husband—

Adrienne—But, Joe, that sort of thing's so vulgar. University audiences don't want such crude stuff. Now, here's a lovely little thing called "Spinner of Moonbeams." It opens in a cottage by firelight, and Columbine comes in a heavenly white dress, and—oh, I can just see Dick as Pierrot!

Lorna—But, Reine, Dick's too intelligent to play a mere moonstruck calf part. Now, I'd like to see him do something worth while.

Dick—Look here, what's wrong with this "Pills, Pressure and Politics," by Pshaw? The lines are great—he takes a crack at all the smug Victorian shams. Listen to this bit where Drumsay—that's the hero—says to Corinthia—

Lorna—But, Dick, we can't do that—they did that here eight years ago—Ron told me. Joe, have you read "Oirghealla Moor"?

Joe—I sure have, and of all the wet trips! Why, it hasn't any sense to it, and it's so darn dismal—

Lorna—It's a wonderful play—I think it's the most powerful thing I ever read. Now, that one of yours, Joe, and this Pshaw affair may be very amusing and all that, but we want something that goes down into the deep, fundamental things in human nature. Now in this Irish play—

Adrienne—How many characters?

Lorna—Three. An old woman—Mary Connors could play that. And a young fellow who's hiding from the English. It's a wonderful part for a man.

Dick—And then there's the girl Moira.

Adrienne—What's she like?

Lorna—Oh, very intense—and mature. There's a tremendous scene where the red coats tie her up and—

Joe—If there's costumes in it, that's out. Do you realize this class has only 29 paid-up members? We've got to be mighty careful how we spend the money.

Adrienne—Well, in the "Spinner of Moonbeams" the costumes wouldn't cost hardly anything. Pierrot wears a sort of clown suit and for Columbine I could get—we could get just tulle, and it's awfully cheap.

Dick—But that play's so kind of—young, don't you think, Adrienne? I mean, it would be just great for a high school, but now we've had a little more experience in life, something more sophisticated—

Lorna—You're absolutely right, Dick. Our play must have depth—and real feeling. Listen to this part where Moira pleads with her lover while the soldiers are breaking down the door: "Och, Sheamus, my own Sheamus, is it kilt ye would be this day—?"

Joe—Omigod, Lorna, nobody wants more Irish dialect after Abie's Irish Rose. Now in this "Whose Little Wife are You?" there's some pep and action.

Lorna—But it's so cheap.

Joe—You're darn right it's cheap. All we need for a set is some snappy wallpaper and a chesterfield. The costumes are all modern. Lucy wears a hot evening dress and the men dinner jackets.

Adrienne—Might not be too bad. What's Lucy like?

Joe—Oh, she's supposed to look like a clinging vine, but she really puts it all over them in the end.

Adrienne—Pass the book over, will you?

Lorna—But, Dick, don't you think that in our year we should do something really worth while?

Dick—Well, I think it should have some sophistication about it.

Joe—Say, lend me the book a minute, Reine. Listen to this: "Enter Lencken, obviously a man of the world. He crosses R with a nonchalant stride, pours himself a drink, and says, 'Ah, Margarita—'"

Lorna—Who's Margarita?

Joe—Oh, she's really a countess in disguise who starts all the trouble by being seen here in Lencken's rooms.

Lorna—Oh, well, perhaps as you say we have to keep down the expense. What do you think, Dick?

Dick—Well, I still think the Pressure and Politics is the real thing for intellect. Perhaps, as Joe says, this one would be easier to put on—

Adrienne—Why, I think it's a perfectly cute play!"

Joe—That's talking sense! Well, let's beat it. I'll post a notice for try-outs Monday. See you there!

Curtain.

—ROBBIE.

THE GREAT UNKNOWN

The chill autumn evening hung over the campus like a got-damp sponge. Which immediately gives the following story away—it's going to be all wet. Out of the gloom which enshrouded that portion of the grounds of our Alma Mater fronting Assiniboia Hall emerged the shadow of a gladiator, wrapped in the uncouth garb of a football player. Like a character from a Greek drama he stalked out of the shadows and peered from beneath overhanging eyebrows around him. Not a soul in sight.

"Ha!" he murmured, "I may still have time." Hastily removing his footwear, and carrying them in his hand, lest he attract attention from some passerby he entered the building and rushed upstairs. Still holding on to the boots, which he had not dropped in his mad rush, he glided around a corner and slid through the key-hole of a convenient door.

"Safety at last," he muttered into the depth of his flowing red beard, which he wore to conceal his lower features. "And I still have time." With a single twist of his wrist he threw the heavy boots into a corner which happened to be in their way, removed a glass eye, tore off his eyebrow, applied a heavy coat of make-up to his visage and disrobed. Modesty compels us to draw "The Vale" over the scene as he removed garment after garment ad infin.

Again!

Ten minutes later, had any one been present, which was fortunately not the case, they would have seen the Phantom re-appear once again. But he was successfully disguised against even the most searching gaze. Gone were the glories of the ruddy whiskers which had shielded him through so many trying times on the Grid. In their place there shone the visage of an earnest young man. New light beamed from twin glass eyes, one green, one red, so chosen to facilitate giving the girls the "Stop" and "Go" signals. The padded shoulders were enshrouded in an inconspicuous tartan shawl, the lower limbs—which had supported him through thick and thin—I mean past beer and gin—were tastefully swathed after the ancient Hebrew fashion in a Navaho Blanket. Thus attired, with never a glance to left or right, the unknown hero stepped forth to take his place in the doings of this little world in which most of us live.

I have said unknown, yet his was indeed a greater glory. For was not his name on every tongue, as the great Huck Vale of Interfac Rugby, who in the afternoon game had kicked to the deadline for his team's only point. Known and beloved for his feet (size 12) by all readers of local papers, yet he managed to live a dual life which none of them suspected. One moment he was the battling machine of the Grid, fear-some of visage, the next he was the scholarly gentleman whom none suspected of doing anything more physically severe than crooking his elbow too often twice a week.

Sic transit gloria mundi—or as Pope once said, "If I were not myself, I would be Babe Ruth." Yet here was a man, whose real being was still unsung, performing the very act which the poet of pessimism had so

POPULAR SUPERSTITIONS

By P. W.

"Double, double, toil and trouble; Kettle boil, and cauldron bubble." The chant was so low and hoarse as to be almost a death-rattle emitted from a parched throat and by twisted lips which scarcely moved. The wizened hag seemed but a bundle of dry bones as she hovered above the contents of the cauldron. A liquid, whose opaque surface suggested nothing of the horrors it contained, appeared for one moment unpleasantly smooth under the jagged light of the flame. Then the fire sank into glowing embers, and there remained the faint silhouette of a misshapen figure crouching beside a massive pot swung upon a tripod.

The witch stretched forth an emaciated hand from which fell the last sacrifice. A hideous cackle, the tormented laugh of a fiend, burst forth—the magic potion was complete! Now indeed would she rend the hitherto impenetrable veil of the future, for good or ill. Macbeth, whose woman's heart was torn by fearful ambitions, had come to supernatural powers for aid. He should have it! Aye! But the solution was to prove even more enigmatical than the question he almost dared not ask.

Superstition vs. Ignorance
"Superstitions are indulgences of ignorant or illiterate minds." Such a statement is common enough, but fallacious. Macbeth, whose desire was fed by and whose ultimate ruin resulted from a blind fear of the supernatural, could not be condemned as an ignorant man.

None of Us Are Immune
He who spills the salt throws it over his left shoulder to avoid bad luck. The prudent housewife throws up her hands in horror when a parcel containing shoes is placed on the table. You may drop the scissors an infinite number of times, but—be not so rash as to pick them up! Let someone else do it, and avoid disaster. Opals are only to be worn by those born in October. A man playing a losing game at cards walks around his chair to change his luck. And so the store of homely superstition accumulates.

Here, at Least—Gentlemen Prefer Brunettes

There is much more striking evidence of the prevalence of superstition in some countries than in others. George Birmingham, who is eminently qualified to write concerning that country, tells many delightful tales of those beliefs popular in Ireland. Red-haired women bring bad luck there. A girl with a particularly brilliant head simply makes periodical sallies into the hedge to hide, as she take her constitutional. If she is seen by a workman he must turn back and take a day's holiday—and it's just too bad for her!

Hallowe'en in Ireland
Hallow Eve is a festival faithfully observed there. It is one of the many feast days adapted from those of the

PROLIFIC POET

BOB WRAY

A dreamer who also acts. O. R. W. can shoot the melodious stuff out of his typewriter by the ream. To those who have been enthralled by the beauty of his poems we issue the warning:

"Judge not the poet by his verse,"
He may be better, may be worse."

often sighed to do, and forever left unsung.
Long live Huck Vale! the kicking "fool" who kicked to the deadline for his team's only point. May he triumph often on the gory field of Interfac and, should he ever choose to remove the Vale which enshrouds his real identity, may he be given the little aluminium plated (cough drop) symbol of supremacy in all things histrionic, athletic, and what have you, for his wonderful though mystery-enshrouded work in our midst.

Songs of a Lover

NO. 5—SONNET: "IF SOON MY HEART—"

If soon my heart shall all unbidden speak,
And tell its long-kept tale to eager ears,
Blessed then with that known love which most I seek,
I shall know joy through all my lengthened years.

But if, as when some modest wind would stay
A passing rill, thou shalt a moment turn,
To laugh, then haste thy course again away,
Me leaving memories time shall not unlearn;

Think not then long I shall continue sad,
But in my grief shall not find hope denied,
Of life beyond, with love on earth forbad,
Eternity spent sweetly by thy side.

So full divine is this my love for thee,
I know it somewhere must requited be.

—YOUR ?

cottage or hovel for one night at least. But it will not prohibit all mischief. The children are warned, in all good faith, not to eat blackberries after the first of November, for a blight has been cast on the fruit by the busy wights of the night before.

"He Loves Me, He Loves Me Not"
Hallowe'en, like many such feasts, is the time to test omens concerning love. In the Isle of Man the curious maiden places a chestnut on the hob before the fireplace. The skin of the chestnut must not be cut but must be allowed to burst. At it does so the nut flies from the hob. If it falls into the fire it tells a sad tale of unrequited affection. If, on the other hand, the chestnut hops towards the girl, the omen is a propitious one.

Now, my dear children, we must bid you adieu, and girls, do try to keep in line and not to push when going to Tuck for chestnuts on Thursday night.

—and I like them because they are blended right.

HONOURED BY C.O.T.C.

CAPT. P. G. DAVIES

Past President of the Students' Union and Secretary of the N.F.C.U.S., whose marriage took place on Sept. 18, 1929.

First Official Banquet C.O.T.C. Officers Held

Made the Occasion for Celebration of Wedding of Captain Percy Davies, Well-Known Past President of Students'
Union, and N.F.C.U.S. Secretary

The first official banquet of the Officers' Mess of the U. of A. Contingent of the C.O.T.C. was held on Wednesday, Oct. 29, in the Connaught (19th Dragoon) Armouries.
This was made the occasion to celebrate the wedding of Capt. P. G.
Davies, second in command of the unit.

Following the excellent dinner,
during which the toast "The King"
was given, Lt.-Col. Stewart Dunn, officer commanding, proposed a toast to "The Bridegroom." In the course of his remarks, the O.C. made several amusing comments on marriage, and explained that the evening's celebration was happily occurring on the bridegroom's twenty-seventh birthday, which somewhat made up for the elapsed time between the wedding and the banquet. Captain Davies' unfailing loyalty and fine work during his nine years' association with the C.O.T.C. were stressed by Col.

Dunn, and on behalf of the officers and the unit the appreciation of that work was manifested in the presentation of a fine silver tray. The latter bears the inscription: "Presented to Captain and Adjutant Percy Griffith
Davies by the Officer Commanding and Officers of the University of Alberta Contingent of the Canadian Officers Training Corps on the Occasion of His Marriage, September 18, 1929."

Captain Davies, better known as "Percy," replied fittingly, claiming in introduction that he "felt like an oyster—in the soup." The presentation came as a very pleasant surprise, and he gave hearty thanks to his O.C. and brother officers for their generosity. In conclusion, Captain Davies expressed the hope that another world conflict would never occur, but emphasized the necessity, until iron-clad peace treaties are made, for preparedness for such a debacle as that of 1914-18.

Captain M. R. Levey, M.D., M.M., next proposed a toast to the C.O.T.C.
Replying to the toast, Col. Dunn expressed appreciation of the compliments of Capt. Levey.
